Two Major New Shopping Centers Being Planned in Madison with Revenue Bonds

By GARY SCHNEIDER
Press-Record Staff Writer

The City of Madison may develop two major shopping centers soon if the city council approves a plan which Mayor Mike Sasyk will present to the aldermen tomorrow evening.

The plan calls for the construction of two commercial areas, one encompassing a city block in the downtown Madison area and a smaller center "on the other end of town," according to the mayor.

He declined to disclose specific locations because of problems in obtaining land options for the centers after the city's intentions are made clear.

The estimated cost for both shopping centers is $1,250,000. "I think the city will be rewarded by increased sales tax because projections indicate that business will increase by more than $2 million," Sasyk explained.

The project will be financed by revenue bonds.

Merchants Willing
"I have contacted merchants that are willing to rent from us, providing our rental rates are within reason," Sasyk commented. He added merchants who may be displaced from their facilities may find new, low-cost, facilities for their stores in the new shopping centers.

"Wherever we choose to build the shopping centers, we will hear complaints from merchants. What they do not understand is that a deal such as this will attract more customers to the area and increase their business, not decrease it," Sasyk commented.

The Mayor said he will ask the council to hire Jerry Maerz of Maerz Realty Co., Madison's only realty firm, to acquire the ground for those areas not now under option. Maerz will charge 5% of the cost of the sale which is the standard realty rate, Sasyk said.

Need Some Options
"The downtown area is under option to another realtor so we will have to negotiate with them," he added.

"We are not going to jump into this. Before we spend one cent, we will have to have ironclad long-term commitments from stores that want to locate there, and we will have to have complete cost projections to show the facilities are going to pay for themselves before we begin construction," Sasyk emphasized.

"The secret to getting the City of Madison to move forward is planning. We have to make the most of every opportunity that is available. We have an opportunity now, but we must take advantage of it to help upgrade our city. We must evaluate our best course of action and we must move with confidence," the Mayor stated.

2,400 Property Owners Here to Lose Household Tax Exemption Due to Ruling

By HARRY BARNES
Press-Record Staff Writer

Approximately 1,400 elderly householders in Granite City township and an additional 1,000 in Venice, Nameki and Chouteau townships will lose the $1,500 state-legislated household exemptions for the 1971 tax year as the result of a Chicago circuit court ruling. It was reported here today.

James Barton, Granite City township tax assessor, said the Illinois State Department of Revenue has notified county and township assessing officials that the $1,500 exemption, scheduled for application in tax bills to be paid in 1972 are to be removed in face of the court ruling.

Barton said that on the basis of a projected Granite City tax rate of $6.33 for 1971 tax year, the loss to elderly home owners here by elimination of the exemption is estimated at $5,000 in tax payments. Another $115,000 in real estate tax savings will be lost to the senior citizen homeowners of the other three townships in the Quad-City area on this same basis.

"It is going to be extremely difficult to explain the problem to those who went to a lot of trouble to file exemption certificates both in 1970 and 1971," Barton said, noting that the exemptions allowed for the 1970 year also should have been eliminated, but were left on the books because invalidating court rulings came too late to change the 1970 assessment books.

Filed Applications
Household exemptions of $1,500 for property owners who were 65 years of age or older were set up in legislation adopted by the General Assembly in 1969. Each homeowner was required to file exemption applications to take advantage of the tax saving. The applications were certified by the local assessors to the Madison County Board of Review which made the reduction in assessments.

After exemptions were credited for the 1970 tax year, a Supreme Court ruling held the legislation invalid on grounds that it was based on the 1870 Illinois Constitution, whereas the new legislation was under the 1970 new Constitution. This court ruling came late in 1970 and the assessments were left on the books and applied to tax bills paid during the summer of 1971.

Last year the General Assembly adopted new legislation re-instating the exemptions. Governor Richard B. Ogilvie signed the new legislation last July 13. Local assessors therefore received new applications and certified the exemptions to the Board of Review. Assessment books are now nearing completion at Edwardsville.

Affects 1971 Year
The circuit court ruling at Chicago held invalid that section of the 1971 exemption legislation that made the act retroactive to Jan. 1, 1971, which means that the only assessment affected by the ruling is that for the 1971 tax year, Barton explained.

He said that a particular problem resulting from the ruling is the revision of assessment changes made in behalf of elderly homeowners who originally had small assessments.

"In instances where an assessment of only $800 or $900, or an amount less than $1,500 was on the books, we raised the assessment to $1,000, to allow the $1,500 reduction and still retain the real estate item on the books at $100," Barton said. "Now our problem is what will happen if the assessment exemption is eliminated and the homeowners assessment is on the books at a larger figure."

Barton said, however, that he is certain the Board of Review will make the necessary changes on these assessments so that no one is assessed more, rather than less, than they were last year.

Abe's Birthday Back To Normal for 1972

Springfield-Illinoisans may have some clearing up on the confusion of when to celebrate Abraham Lincoln's birthday in 1972.

The confusion started in 1971, when the honoring of the Civil War President's birthday was moved to the first Monday in February. It normally was on the 18th President's birthday of Feb. 12.

So last year, the first year of the change in the birthday celebration, brought about a great deal of confusion in this state.

The change in the holiday was done by the General Assembly about two years ago. At that time, the General Assembly passed a bill establishing the honoring of past great citizens or holidays on a Monday. This also gave Illinoisans several three-day holidays throughout the year.

The General Assembly said it was making the change, which became effective in 1971, mainly to be in conformity with federal laws. In the main, the birthday celebrations are observed by federal, state employees and some financial institutions and, of course, school children. But Illinoisans went a step further than other states by altering the Lincoln birthday as well as making the other holiday changes.

In 1971, when the change became effective, a great deal of confusion arose as to when the birthday of the Great Emancipator would be celebrated. In fact, some were not aware until the last minute that the change had been made and that it would be celebrated on the first Monday of February.

This caused many of the lawmakers to have second thoughts about the Lincoln change during the 1971 legislative session.

Rep. J. David Jones, R-Springfield, introduced a bill in the House to change the birthday celebration or holiday back to the original Feb. 12.

In all, ones picked up 22 co-sponsors for the legislation. It passed the House and was sent to the Senate, where the legislation was handled by Sen. G. William Horsley, R-Springfield. The bill passed there and was signed into law by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Under the provision of the legislation introduced by the Springfield lawmaker, the legal celebration of Lincoln's birthday goes back to Feb. 12, or the Monday following if Feb. 12 falls on a Sunday.

The legislation was pushed by the legislators from Springfield which was Lincoln's home. This is the city which has the only house that Lincoln ever owned, and it was in Springfield that he was laid to rest after being struck down by an assassin's bullet.

Deficit Spending Faces Agencies

(Third of a series)

A tax spiral traditionally reflects an effort by a governmental agency to keep its income and outgo in balance despite rises in wages and other costs.

This is occurring locally but it has not entirely succeeded in avoiding "red ink" operation by taxing agencies. Taxes and spending are going up, and so are deficits.

The situation has been noted by the Tri-Cities Taxpayers Public Expenditures Survey Group, which plans to meet Jan. 18 to consider expanded research and consultation activities.

A spokesman for the group has voiced hopes for "a prosperous new year" for all. But he adds:

"Our tax information is gloomy and could make the new year less prosperous than many might have hoped."

"We have prepared a study of tax rate projections for the Quad-City area for the 1971 tax year (1972 collection), based on current best estimates of the assessed valuations."

"Taxes have risen in all districts and most severely in Granite City, where we project the 1971 tax rate, for taxes to be paid in the year 1972, at $6.33, or an increase of 63 cents over the $5.70 rate for 1970 (1971 collection). This is a net rise of 11.2%."

"Madison and Venice rates are more modest in the projected increase than in Granite City, with the exception of Madison School District No. 12, which is to rise a full 20 cents in rate."

"The unfortunate part about this year's particularly large jump is that the City of Granite City, Madison School District 12 and Granite City School District No. 9 all are facing budget deficit situations in addition to these substantial rate increases."

"The 18-cent rate increase in the City of Granite City permitted by the home rule provisions of our new Illinois Constitution still has not put the municipality into the position of a balanced budget."

"Unit No. 9 schools not only jumped a full 35 cents in rate, exhausting their education rate limit, but the current contract negotiated with the teachers provides for an increase next year of an additional amount for which no currently approved tax rate increase is available."

"The tax rate projections say is that we are over in getting the Tri-Cities Taxpayers Public Expenditures Survey Group formally organized, funded, and with membership representation from all segments of the community — labor, business and industry."

"Although we testified at the budget adoption hearings before the boards of education of Districts 9 and 12, and we reviewed the rate increase for the City of Granite City, our effectiveness undoubtedly was hindered by the fact that the Taxpayers Group is not currently representing, through membership, a large enough cross-section of the community's economic interests, taxpayers and voters."

Strategists Fear Kennedy Would Hurt Demo Chances

By KEN WATSON
Copy News Service

Springfield — Illinois Republicans hope it's Kennedy, not Democrats, don't.

The situation is a reverse from a year or even six months ago and reflects the changes which have taken place in the Illinois political outlook.

Last spring Republicans were worried that Mayor Richard J. Daley might use his recognized influence in Democratic national politics to bring about the nomination of Sen. Edward (Ted) Kennedy of Massachusetts for President.

There was concern among the GOP that with a Kennedy again heading the ticket and with Lt. Gov. Paul Simon as the candidate for governor Democrats might be approaching the unsteady in Illinois.

Everything Has Changed
Statehouse Democrats for their part were contemplating such a combination with obvious relief. But now everything has changed.

Despite Kennedy's continuing strong showing in various popularity polls, the feeling beneath the Capitol Dome is that he would cost the Democrats in Illinois more votes than he would gain them.

Aside from some vital differences between Ted Kennedy and his President brother John F. Kennedy, Statehouse strategists doubt that Daley could ever mount such a tremendous Chicago effort that enabled John F. Kennedy to squeeze by in Illinois by a mere 8,858 still disputed vote.

In 1960 Daley rolled up an immense 48,315 vote plurality for John Kennedy in the city of Chicago and that enabled him to win the post in the state's counter-push by Richard M. Nixon from the Cook county suburbs and Downstate.

John Kennedy, who made an special effort to cultivate voters in traditionally Republican big-city suburbs, did better than might be expected in that area in 1960. He won the vote of a vast majority of all-out support from the late Paul Powell, an incomparable Democratic power in age and reflects the changes which have taken place in the Illinois political outlook.

Most important of all, most Statehouse Republicans feel that Daley's vote will be an all-out effort by Daley this year would be a handicap rather than an asset to the younger Kennedy.

Daley an Issue
For because of the slatemaking mess and the surprisingly strong attack on the mayor and his organization by independent Democrat primary candidate Walking Dan Walker, Daley has become far more a direct issue in the upcoming Illinois campaign than most Democrats would like.

There is a growing feeling that many voters in the November election as well as Democrat voters in the March primary will be voting against Daley choices just to express their resentment against a style of political bossism, which counts Illinois and Chicago as its last stronghold.

Statehouse Democrats fear that a Kennedy-Daley combination would be a real restraint against the mayor, especially Downstate and could endanger the entire state ticket, whose overall prospect they now rate as good.

This is why Democrats are so anxious to squeeze by in Illinois by a mere 8,858 still disputed vote.

Drop January Draft Call, Perhaps February, Too

Springfield—Like the rest of the nation, Illinois will issue no draft call for January, and present indications are that a February call will be avoided as well.
Dean Sweet, state selective service director, said his office would usually be receiving the February quota figure from Washington "about now," but so far no quota has been received. The last Illinois draftees were called in December, when the state had an unusually low call of about 400. Many of these were postponed before they were called up, Sweet said.

In Washington, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has predicted that the first quarter of 1972 may see no draft call issued through the nation, with the final determination based on how successful the armed forces are in attracting volunteers.

The present administration has committed itself to achieving an all-volunteer force by mid-1973, while Congress has set a limit of 802,000 men in the Army by next June 30. To achieve that figure, the Army may have to trim down more than 70,000 men, thereby postponing again the need for inductees to keep the ranks filled.

"Presently," said Sweet of the Illinois picture, "We just can't predict about February. We simply supply a need as determined by the office of defense in Washington. They decide and then we act."

Sweet said he did not know when those postponed in December would eventually be called.

Court Rulings Prompt New View on School Financing

By RAY SERATI
Copy News Service

Springfield—A recent court ruling in Texas is giving increased interest to the method used in financing Illinois' public school system.
In the court ruling in Texas it was held that the real estate and other property taxes could not be used as a basis for deriving finances to support the local public schools. Earlier this year the California Supreme Court ruled in a similar fashion.

The ruling came during the Illinois General Assembly, and many legislators expressed the feeling that new forms of financing eventually would have to be arrived at to support public schools in Illinois.

Some northern Illinoisans wasted no time after the California ruling.

There are also possibilities that the Illinois courts will have to rule on the way unit and dual districts presently are being financed through state funds. In the recently completed legislative session dual districts officials tried to change the formula on state aid. However, the proposal did not get the needed support for passage.

Shortly after the California Supreme Court ruling, State School Supt. Michael Bakalis appointed a special committee on school financing. The committee was formed to look at the overall picture of financing of public schools.

Presently, under Illinois' plan of financing there is a tendency for school districts with heavy industry or higher bracket income residences to raise more money for the schools than the areas which have lower or moderate income families.

For the last three or four years school financing in Illinois has been a continuing problem. Each time the general Assembly meets arguments get longer and hotter on financing of schools. A court decision in Illinois could force the General Assembly into definite action.

City Opposes U of I Grant in Settlement

A resolution opposing a portion of the proposed Granite City Steel Co. air pollution settlement with the Environmental Protection Agency, requesting that $150,000 of the settlement be spent locally, will be presented for adoption to the Granite City Council at its meeting tonight.

The resolution, which the council asked be prepared last week, will object to a proposed $150,000 grant to the University of Illinois for students in environmental studies. Mayor Donald Partney said he believes the funds should be used in Granite City for cleaning up air pollution or be granted to Southern Illinois University-Southwestern, which would provide local benefits. The recipient of the grant was specified by the EPA.

The grant is a portion of a $4,000,000 program which the steel company and the EPA agreed upon after months of hearings. The proposed settlement presently is before the Illinois Pollution Control Board for final approval. The council's resolution will be sent to the IPCB in Chicago for consideration.

The resolution was suggested by Mayor Partney and Alderman Everett Morien moved to have the city attorney prepare it for approval.

Edward Delmore Heads Bi-State Agency Board

Edward J. Delmore Jr., Caseyville, was elected chairman of the Bi-State Development Agency in a special reorganization meeting of the Agency's Board of Commissioners, Thursday.

He succeeds Robert S. Knapp, whose term has expired. Delmore, a native of East St. Louis, has served on the Board of Commissioners since March 1961.

Prior to his election as chairman he held the office of vice-chairman.

Missouri Commissioner Morton R. Bearman was elected by the board to succeed Delmore as vice-chairman of the agency. Bearman has served two different terms as a commissioner of the agency, from 1955 to 1960, and then was reappointed in 1965.

In other action, the current commissioners were introduced to two new Missouri commissioners—W. Munro Roberts Jr. and I. Owen Funderburg. Roberts, an attorney, was appointed Dec. 3, 1971, to fill the unexpired term of the late Robert T. Hensley.

Roberts' term will expire on Nov. 10, 1973. Funderburg was appointed to the agency's board of commissioners on Dec. 16, 1971, to replace Knapp. At the Thursday meeting, Funderburg was elected treasurer and Illinois Commissioner Roy J. May was re-elected secretary of the board. The commissioners also voted to change their regular monthly meeting to the fourth Thursday of each month.

Other members of the board not previously mentioned are: Leo F. Flotron and Guy Reier from Missouri and from Illinois Eugene R. Burnett, Ralph B. Jackson and Ralph D. Walker. All members of the Agency's Board serve without pay or other remuneration.

Dear Nana--Seeks Conversationalist; Criticizes Use of Artificial 'Means'

By JACKIE STEFANICH
Copley News Service

Dear Nana:
I certainly enjoy reading your column as I'm 70 years old and a partial shut-in.

I have a hobby of "cutting clippings" and I'm interested in travel, conversation, animals, children, etc. But I live alone and have few visitors, so I don't have anyone to talk to about these clippings.

Could you give me any suggestions as to how I could get the names and addresses of people who live alone or in rest homes who don't get much mail?

I'd like to write short notes, comments about my clippings to someone who'd be interested in corresponding with me. I don't have much income and couldn't write too much as I have arthritis in my hands. I don't want to listen to personal troubles or politics, just good conversation.

Pen Pal

Dear Pen Pal:
As you happen to live in an area where they are many convalescent hospitals, rest homes and retirement centers, you shouldn't have any difficulty finding some interesting pen pals.

Therefore, I suggest you contact the head nurse or administrator of these facilities. I'm sure they'll be able to give you the names of those people who'd like to correspond with you. Remember, there are a great many people just like yourself who appreciate good conversation in these homes.

Dear Nana:
I didn't much like your answer to "Gone" concerning her plea regarding mercy killings as you didn't point out the real villains in these cases.

I know all about the Hippocratic oath doctors take, so it's up to those who love their doomed ones to insist that keeping such patients artificially alive can't be endured. The innate dignity of man no longer exists in such cases, with intravenous feeding, oxygen tents and unspeakable treatments.

The convalescent hospitals can't be blamed. This is their job. But do question the doctors and pharmacists who take a lot of cream off the top at the expense and misery of both the patients and those who love them.

My main complaint about convalescent hospitals is that more money is spent on medication than on food. "Keep them alive artificially and half-servive them" would be a good slogan for those profit-making places.

Most of the prisoner patients would rather be dead. I know. I'm one of them.

Dear H. O.:
I'm afraid I can't argue for or against your complaints regarding the convalescent hospital where you are staying as I don't know all the circumstances. But I do know that I'd leave any convalescent hospital or other facility that I wasn't satisfied with.

As for mercy killings and medical treatment during this time are a difficult subject to discuss. I think that brings us right back to the answer I gave "Gone." Who wants to play God in making these decisions?

However, I do think your criticism of the doctors, pharmacists and convalescent hospitals is rather strong, as all of these people are governed by laws that require them to do a certain amount to try to prolong the life of any individual regardless of age.

And where that line is to be drawn I don't know. But I do know I wouldn't want that responsibility. Would you?

Dear Nana:
Some time ago I noticed in your column that you offered a pattern of a clock-face calendar.

And I'm sure it's very lovely when finished. But what about those unfortunate people (like myself) who aren't talented and can't do handiwork and can't afford the $125 to purchase one of you mentioned?

Last month I saw ahead for a Ring-A-Date-Calendar in the home section of our Sunday paper, advertised by a gift shop at a very reasonable price.

I sent for it and my husband mugged it on a peg board, using the gift shop's instructions. I thought this might be a good idea for those who like me are untalented.

My grandchildren have had a lot of fun with my date calendar and it's certainly a good substitute for the expensive one. I'm enclosing the name and address of the gift store where I got mine as well as the manufacturer who makes them.

Dear Unlabeled:

Thank you very much for the information pertaining to the Ring-A-Date-Calendar. I'll be glad to pass it on to those who may be interested in this item.

Dear Nana:
I'm not positive but I thought you mentioned in your column that you answered every letter you received. Is that correct?

Well, I'm one person who can prove that's not true.

Some time ago I wrote you concerning a problem that was very important to me. And so far I haven't heard a word from you, advising me about my problem.

How do you explain this?

No Answer

Dear No Answer:
Yes, it's true. I answer every letter I receive.

However, there can be a very good reason why you haven't had an answer from me concerning your problem.

Did you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope? At the present time I have a vast pending file of letters I can't answer as the writers did not enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. And some of them didn't even bother to give me their name and address.

Which one are you? And from the looks of your second letter I'm afraid you'll still be No Answer as you neglected to enclose the above items.

Trojans To Host Warriors Tuesday

Area high school basketball fans will be able to see both the Madison Trojans and the Granite City Warriors play at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday as they meet at the Madison gym.

The Trojans are 2-3 going into the game. They have had two weeks rest. The Trojans were not in a holiday tournament.

"There's no kidding, our selves Granite will be hard to beat," Madison Coach Larry Graham said. "They have four of their five starters from last season, and we have really only one."

"In addition, they are taller and seem to have a lot of speed. Despite this Granite will know its been in a basketball game as we are planning a few surprises on the court."

The Warriors have been keeping their cage skills sharpened as they have played two games in the Pontiac Holiday tournament, winning their opener 76-66 and losing to Chicago Heights Bloom 74-57. The Warriors are now 6-3 overall for the season.

A junior varsity game will precede the varsity tilt at 6:30 p.m.

EVERYBODY NEEDS SOME PRIVACY

Even in a small house, it's possible for each family member to have a private place for his special possessions. You can use boxes labeled with your children's names, or specially assigned drawers or shelves. The important thing is that other family members follow a "hands off" policy regarding such private places. Parents should not "snoop" either. But if you do see something that causes concern, talk it over with your child. Don't simply throw away items you disapprove of without discussing the subject.

Each family member also needs a private place where he can be alone—to think, to cry, to puzzle over a problem without interference from others. For some, this place may be a bedroom; for others, a quiet corner of the garage or basement. Even the end of a narrow hall could be curtained off the privacy.

YOUR CHILDREN'S FRIENDS

Many parents find themselves disapproving of their teenage son's friends and wondering how to cope with the situation. You might first of all, list the reasons for not liking particular youngsters. Is it because of their hair length or the way they dress? Is it because you disapprove of their family life? Is it because they like to work on cars and motorcycles and appear greasy and dirty most of the time? Or is it because they take drugs, steal, drink, or do things against the law?

As you can see, some reasons are better than others for not liking a youngster's friends. If the real reason is simply hair length, clothes or cleanliness, you would probably be wise to keep quiet.

If the reasons are more serious, it's a good idea to sit down with the teenager and tell him your feelings. He probably knows how you feel anyway, but he needs to hear you say the things to explain his side. Such a discussion should not be an argument. And after one's feelings are made known, it is best to let the matter rest.

A problem is often made worse by giving it too much attention. If you have set good standards for your children, have confidence in their judgment when choosing friends.

LONELINESS IN MARRIAGE
Loneliness in marriage usually begins with an inability to communicate. If every comment brings a complaint, argument or just a grunt, people often simply stop talking to each other.

Anger and irritation with one's spouse are normal. But such feelings can be handled in a way that will not destroy communication within a marriage. It isn't easy to discuss complaints and annoyances, but it's unwise to bottle up your frustrations. Express your anger frankly. But do so without attacking the other person's character. The main rule for quarreling is "fight fairly." Avoid overstating conditions or exaggerating blame. Keep to the main issue and don't bring in others. And remember that a little humor can often do wonders to soothe anger.

GREEN PAINT FOR GOLDEN LAWNS
Green dyes for Bermuda and Zoysia grass lawns closely match the natural green color and last for several months. Manufacturers suggest a late-fall application and another in early spring. You can do it yourself, but be careful to protect sidewalks and lawn fixtures. Green paint on the sidewalk spoils the effect. Tinting dormant grasses is not a fireproofing practice. Instead, tinting creates a sensation more in harmony with your landscaping and existing plants.

Jaycee Talent Contest To Star 15 Teenagers

Savings bonds of $100, $75 and $50 will be awarded the top three contestants. Joyce said. Prizes also will be presented those in attendance.

Proceeds from the contest will be used to further various youth projects sponsored by the local young men's service club.

Even as you and I, anthropologist Sidney G. Denny of Southern Illinois University-Southern, wonder about what happened in the prehistoric past. The difference is that he is trained to find out about it.

Denny uses the tools of archeology—digging in the earth for the artifacts of peoples long dead.

He and his students dig every summer at the sites of villages which surrounded the city of Cahokia—not the quiet little town on modern maps; but the bustling Indian metropolis which flourished during what is called in Europe the "High Middle Ages."

When Charlemagne was conquering his empire in France and Germany, small groups of Indians from Missouri or Oklahoma, were bringing their civilization to the American Bottoms.

While Genghis Khan and his descendants were developing Eastern Europe in their iron grip, the area which is now recognized as the Cahokia Mounds was a sophisticated city with a population perhaps as great as 40,000.

Dead in Columbus' Time

When Columbus sighted the West Indies, the great city was effectively dead, and its civilization was dispersing.

Since that civilization left no written language through which it can be easily understood, anthropologists like Denny are needed to interpret the bones and stones, nuts, flints and potsherds (pieces of broken pottery) which remain.

In the hands of amateurs, this evidence can be misleading. Indeed, even the professionals require massive effort to piece together the puzzle.

"Ten years ago, we knew there was something at Cahokia Mounds," Denny says, "but we didn't know how big it was or what it signified." After a decade of study by trained scholars, "we have a much better idea," he continued.

The research is hardly conclusive, however. Estimates of population vary from a low of 10,000 to a high of 40,000. The dates of the settlement have been established as 800 A.D. to 1350 A.D.—plus or minus 200 years.

Denny's research carries him outside the defensive palisades of the mounds to the tiny villages which surrounded it. Since Cahokia is so complex, it is difficult to comprehend it; "anthropologists can study Cahokia for another 200 years," according to Denny.

Villages Were Small

The villages Denny studies were smaller and simpler, however, and they can be understood more quickly. One site, on the campus of SIU-SW, was excavated in one summer by anthropology students. After another few months of work, Denny has been able to determine that the site was occupied by non-resident farmers during the period 1050-1150 A.D.

This time period is contemporaneous with the "middle" or "high" period at Cahokia, when the city flourished. Material from the site indicates that they shared the Cahokia Mounds civilization, and may indeed have actually lived there when not in the fields, which lay a few miles from the city.

This summer, Denny and his students excavated a site of the property of Olin Corp., on the bluffs near Alton. Although the site is much larger than the one excavated by the students, it is not as complex as the agricultural site worked the previous year, and will require further digging, Denny already has been able to determine a good deal about its inhabitants.

"The site was a permanent village," he said. "We've uncovered more than nine houses and suspect there were others nearby. The remains indicate that it was inhabited during the period 13-1350 A.D. by people who didn't farm but collected their food by the more primitive method of 'hunting and gathering.'"

From this evidence, Denny constructs hypotheses: "Perhaps the villagers were special advisers who hunted in order to trade with other peoples." The evidence of trade includes pieces of conch shell, native to the Gulf of Mexico, which abound on the site. "They also may have traded with farmers who inhabited the Bottoms," he said.

Another possibility is that, by this time Cahokia had so declined that its inhabitants had dispersed and reverted to more primitive methods of existence.

Leaves Other Questions

This possibility opens the door to other questions. Was there some minor climate shift which made farming at Cahokia, already marginal, impossible? Did hostile native Indians force the Cahokians onto the bluffs, where they were easier to defend?

Or was there some sort of political upheaval at Cahokia which scattered its peoples? To find the answers, Denny uses archaeological surveys and old-fashioned footwork to find the sites. In the American Bottoms, farmers plowing their fields frequently unearth fragments. On the bluffs, "since they are covered with loess (wind-blown soil), we know that any rock we find was carried there by an Indian," Denny said.

When a site has been excavated, bags of specimens are returned to the laboratory where they are washed, sorted, classified and analyzed. They are then submitted to scientific tests.

Carbon-14 dating, which is accurate, is also expensive, and Denny has so far lacked the funds to subject his evidence to this test. "It costs about $1,000 to get enough dates from a site to be valid," according to Denny.

Fortunately for science and the taxpayers, less accurate but still manageable dating can be accomplished from the remains of pottery found at the sites. "Enough archeology work has been accomplished in the Cahokia region to determine the rough periods during which distinctive styles of pottery were manufactured."

Denny notes the research he had already begun, and which will continue at least another four or five years, will tell anthropologists more about the city of Cahokia by examining the villages which surrounded it. This in turn, he hopes will answer questions which have a modern impact.

"What is urbanism?" he asks. "We know Cahokia disintegrated, as did other urban civilizations—are there any commonalities shared by them? What are these commonalities which urban civilizations share?"

If Denny doesn't have the answers, at least he has the questions.

Youth Orchestra Parents

To Meet on Saturday

Parents of members of the St. Louis Symphony Youth Orchestra are invited to a meeting in the grand foyer of Powell Symphony Hall at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the day following the Youth Orchestra's first concert of the season.

The Youth Orchestra itself, which will be in rehearsal under Leonard Slatkin's direction during the meeting, will join the parents afterward for refreshments provided by the Women's Association Youth Orchestra Committee.

"What is urbanism?" he asks. "We know Cahokia disintegrated, as did other urban civilizations—are there any commonalities shared by them? What are these commonalities which urban civilizations share?"

GC Siren Network Gets Test Sounding Tuesday

A monthly test of Granite City's warning siren network is scheduled at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Civil Defense Director Victor H. Koenig reminded local residents today.

The tests are carried out on the first Tuesday of each month at the same time, the CD official noted. Each test lasts a total of three minutes and includes two distinct tones of one minute duration, separated by 60 seconds of silence.

Koenig said the initial signal—a steady tone—was used solely as an alert signal and notifies citizens to turn on their radio for information regarding tornado weather conditions in the immediate area.

The second signal—a wailing or undulating tone—means take cover immediately. The wailing sound will be used only in the event of an imminent nuclear attack and is restricted by statute from being sounded for any other purpose, the CD director said.

Sheriff's Employees Get 5% Salary Raise

Madison County sheriff's employees, newly organized by Operating Engineers Local 320 in Mitchell, received a 5% across-the-board pay increase in a contract signed with county officials last week.

The contract is subject to approval by the federal government under Phase II wage-price guidelines as additional wage adjustment for 22 deposits and length of service increases will bring the average hike to more than 5 1/2%.

The union, with David Gasper as business agent, represents 70 of about 100 persons employed in the department, including deputies, jailers, dispatchers, secretaries and cooks.

It was the first formal written contract for the sheriff's employees and was signed by Harold Landolt, chairman of the county Board of Supervisors, and Miss Eulalia Horz, county clerk.

Author Disturbed That Everything Nation Was Founded On Is On Trial

I REMEMBER AMERICA; by Eric Sloane; Funk & Wagnall; 184 pages.

Reviewed by CHARLES H. Copley News Service

Writes painter Eric Sloane is an angry old man.

He looks about him in modern America and sees little to like or admire.

He sees the land giving way to shopping centers and used car lots; once-lovely and quiet country lanes to superhighways; the colorful weather vane to the ugly television antenna; architecture of beauty and permanence to glass and steel boxes.

"What is needed is a national revolution of indignation," says Sloane in his book, "I Remember America."

"As free people we have a powerful capacity for righteous indignation, and since the American Revolution, it has never been more needed than right now."

Church architecture especially depresses him.

"Few changes have saddened me more than the new modernistic buildings which have now begun to fouse the church," he says.

"They should symbolize Christianity; yet, I have seen modern churches that more resemble Carvel stands, cement tents, world's fair concessions, enlarged gas stations, prisons, warehouses and almost anything but the standard design of the American church."

Our farms have been mechanized, and they have lost in the process.

"Those neatly tied squarish packages of hay that the baler drops off here and there across our few remaining hayfields wrap up a lot of the best memories of American life into Picasso-like symbols of mechanized farming," Sloane says.

"Now there is no group of farmers—only one loud tractor. No laughter or singing; no switchel of molasses, water, ginger and vinegar to drink, nor horses and haywagons; even scythes and pitchforks are gone."

Even the old summer place with its icelhouse and absence of electricity—has lost its charm.

"The summer place today has become a different establishment with a cellar, central heat, electric light and all the accoutrements of a year-round house."

But a real summer place one time meant a complete vacation from all mechanical conveniences; it was a retreat to nature, a period of rest and meditation, a vacation from the busy world," writes Sloane.

Sloane, who began his career half a century ago as an interior sign painter, illustrates his point with plates of 37 oil paintings that evoke the magic of the marshes, stone barns, covered bridges, New England farmsteads and the horse-drawn plow.

But Sloane says what is happening in modern America is more than a giving way of the old to the new.

"The challenge for the survivors of America is currently much greater than it was when our country began its history," he writes.

"Moderation, peace, decency, freedom, discipline, devotion to country, reverence for God—almost everything we have known and loved was originally founded, are suddenly on trial. The real danger is that we tolerate it."

"In the blind faith that their truth will save them, we accept and even encourage attacks on our national heritage; we accept it as a temporary truce."

"We frequently learn backward to the point of losing balance, while components of our national heritage disappear one by one."

extreme, the other needs have to give.

For most of the big states like Illinois, well, costs, every need, however important it may be, must be measured against every other need.

To suggest that higher education has in any way

been neglected in Illinois is to ignore the plain facts.

In terms of spending per person in the state, Illinois ranks above all other populous industrial states, including California and New York.

In the decade beginning in 1960, our spending on state colleges and universities soared 340 per cent while enrollments increased at less than half that rate.

That scarcely supports the fiction that our higher education needs have been shared or neglected.

Yet we witnessed last year a most bitter and pointless battle, with rank partisan overtones, to increase spending for higher education without a single move to provide the additional funds that were demanded.

I am hopeful that the failure of last year will, this year, convince our educators that the hard task of holding the line on expenses must and should be theirs.

Any other course leaves to persons outside the educational community the job of determining what's most important in education—what should be fully funded, and what should be cut back.

To turn the job over to the General Assembly would establish a precedent that would haunt our educators for years to come.

Last year's battle was an attempt to force public and legislative emotions to guide decisions which the higher education community was reluctant to make itself.

This year we are starting as early as we can to convince the legislature that we are serious in our determination to make their own choices within available revenues, and that qualified students are not them to come out of the financial deprivation of the last decade and join the rest of us in the world of practical realities.

Life Quality, Prosperity Possible in 1972 Through Cooperative, Unselfish Activities

Nineteen seventy-two has begun. Like a new year, it offers abundant opportunities to move the Quad-City community forward in quality of life and in the general level of prosperity and well-being.

More so in 1972 than in many past years, it seems possible and even probable that such opportunities will be utilized—that the bright potential will be converted to reality.

Problems have not miraculously vanished. But there is greater awareness of them at all levels, accompanied by a renewed dedication to finding solutions.

It often has been said that almost anything "could" be accomplished if people worked together unselfishly and did not worry about who got the credit. In this spirit, several constructive programs have been launched.

ABIL— a program of joint community service by Agriculture-Industry-Labor—was announced at the annual Chamber of Commerce meeting. Objectives discussed include:

Early completion of the downtown Granite City mall.

Paving and widening of a major traffic artery into this community, the section of N. Meek Road-Highway 203 between Pontoon Road and Interstate 270-Chain of Rocks Road.

Provision of junior college facilities.

Establishment of a convention and performing arts center on the Southern Illinois University-Southwestern campus.

Division of the East Side Levee & Sanitary District to create separate Quad-City and East St. Louis districts.

Prompt establishment of the SIU School of Dental Medicine.

Encouragement of agencies participating in the Tri-Cities United Fund to combine their headquarters buildings and certain staff services to achieve a reduction in overhead costs and economies in operating expenses.

And substantially increased government or private use of the extensive facilities at Granite City Army Installation.

Quad-City mayors have met with a number of union men on local economic, unemployment and are seeking methods of halting the downturn in production jobs in this region.

The Tri-City Taxpayers Public Expenditures Survey Group has continued its research and this month will consider expanding the scope of its efforts to encourage citizen participation in governmental processes.

Other groups and individuals are active, and other issues merit attention. But these examples make the point that there is widespread earnestness to cooperatively bring about progressive steps for this community and its residents.

The word "cooperatively" could well be the keynote for 1972, for it is the key to the success everyone desires.

A false friend and your shadow are around only when the sun is shining.

Delays, Disruptions Thwart Constitution's Guarantee of 'Speedy and Public' Justice

The constitutional guarantee of a "speedy and public trial" is being increasingly frustrated in many sections of the United States by a growing number of politically-motivated trial delays that attack the fabric of the court system—and thus the fabric of democracy itself.

Procedural rules of the courts—the basic safeguard measures to assure fair trials—are the vital concepts under attack.

As Attorney General John Mitchell told the American Bar Association, "The hydra of excess proceduralisms, archaic formulas, pre-trial and post-trial motions, appeals, postponements, continuances and collateral attacks can have the effect of dragging justice to death and stealing the very life out of the law."

There also is truth in the belief of U. S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger that "all too often, overzealous advocates seem to think the zeal and effectiveness of a lawyer depends on how thoroughly he can disrupt proceedings."

A speedy public trial is impossible if court procedures are misused deliberately to delay justice rather than to assure it. There are many examples to show that such delay often subverts justice itself.

The lengthy trial of the Chicago Seven, the result of rioting during the 1968 Democratic national convention in Chicago, is still not fully settled to this day. Some of the defendants, including Yippee leader Jerry Rubin, have announced that they will attend forthcoming conventions; this could result in further legal impasses and erode deeper the concept of swift, equitable justice.

Legal circumlocutions continue to shadow the trial of those who face charges arising from an escape attempt in 1970 by prisoners at the Marin County Courthouse. Four persons, including a judge, were slain in the escape effort.

No one with respect for the Constitution would contend that there is justification for legal shortcuts simply for the sake of procedures, or because the waiting line in the courts is long. Each person accused of a crime is entitled to face his accusers, to have a full day in court and be heard by a jury of his peers, if that is his wish.

But each legal proceeding needs a reasonable guarantee of finality, an assurance that justice will be served with reasonable dispatch.

It is this balance that is the lifeblood of America's system of justice. And the balance is being placed in jeopardy by excessive delays and disruptive acts.

The issue is more the most important to be dealt with during 1972 because whether it is resolved will go a long way toward determining the effectiveness of our system of jurisprudence.

Vote for a candidate who promises the least; he's sure to be the least disappointing.

He who lacks principle seldom draws much interest.

FAMOUS-BARR TO OPEN MANY ILLINOIS STORES

To the Editor: We read with great interest your Dec. 20 editorial concerning the location of the first Famous-Barr store in Illinois and wish to take this opportunity to acknowledge it.

Let me assure you, first of all, that The May Department Stores and Famous-Barr certainly hold no prejudice against the Quad-Cities.

We value the patronage of the many citizens of the area who shop at our stores as highly as we value the loyal service of our residents who are Famous-Barr store members.

Further, the fact of choice of a Fairview Heights location for this new store does not mean that we have no other Famous-Barr stores on the east side. It is the first of what we hope will be many such stores in Illinois.

Our Missouri operation, you may recall, began with but one store in downtown St. Louis. That was, many years ago, that one store has increased to a total of eight.

As we have no doubt that our Missouri operation will continue to grow, neither do we doubt the progress of our new Illinois operation. You may be certain that in the search for the best location for Famous-Barr stores in Illinois, the Quad-Cities will not be overlooked.

I hope this letter answers in part your question of our choice for the location of the new store. In any event, please be certain of our gratitude for your interest in Famous-Barr.

OFFICER FRIENDLY PROGRAM COMMEDED

To the Editor: Several officers of the Granite City Police Department should be congratulated for the formation of the "Officer Friendly" program.

These officers have put much of their own time and effort into teaching young school children traffic safety and how a police officer can help them.

This is something I think all parents of small children will be thankful for.

PRESIDENT MIXING FOOTBALL POLITICS

To the Editor: I wonder that the Washington Redskins lost out in the playoffs. Heap big Republican cheer, Nixon, put kiss of death on the team.

All of which leads to speculation as to whom down he shall be—Agnew's Colts, Brady's Dolphins, Connolly's Cowboys or Reagan's Forty Niners.

What does the "Southern strategy" dictate? I think he should make this "perfectly clear."

Tenants' Rights Protected Under This State's Strict Eviction Law

(Tri-City and Illinois Bar Associations)

Many people believe that leases are for the landlord's protection and that tenants have little recourse when it comes to fighting for their rights.

However, under Illinois law, tenants are protected by a strict procedure for eviction which varies depending on whether or not there is a lease.

For example, can a vigilant landlord evict a tenant's possessions on the front sidewalk, turn the key in the apartment and declare the tenant evicted?

Not without an order from the court. And to receive this directive he must first sue the tenant.

If the tenant is delinquent in rent payment, and if there is no written lease which provides otherwise, the landlord must serve the tenant a notice which simply states that the tenant must leave the premises within that period.

The length of the time period depends upon whether the tenant rents weekly or monthly, or for some other term. When this period expires, the landlord may sue if the tenant remains.

The landlord can also give a five-day notice which permits the tenant to pay his rent within the five days and stay in the premises.

If the tenant pays the rent within the five days, the landlord must accept the rent.

Also in both cases, if the landlord decides to accept the rent money for the term after the date for vacating the premises, the notice is void. The landlord has the right not to accept the money if it is offered to him, and if he does not, the notice is valid and binding.

If a tenant is under a written lease, this document usually provides for the time of the notice to be given. After the specified period, the landlord may sue the tenant for the premises.

Propose Dayton, Buchanan Streets

JANUARY 3, 1922

The alphabetical list of streets in Granite City will be no more if an ordinance introduced and placed on first reading by the City Council becomes law. The proposal is for A street to be changed to Adams, B to Buchanan, C to Cleveland, D to Dayton, E to Elm, G to Garfield and Chestnut to Jefferson. Nothing is mentioned as to whether M, N or P would be changed.

The Granite City Community High School faculty entertained the students at a holiday party at the Labor Temple. The entertainment, which was a series of stunts, featured impersonations of teachers by students.

Cold Wave Curtailing Production

Governor Expects Higher Education Revenue Crisis To Last Many Years

By GOVERNOR RICHARD B. OGILVIE

No one likes to be the bearer of bad news.

I had that role recently when I spoke to a meeting of administrators of our state colleges and universities.

The message was simple: The free and easy days of ever-increasing funds for public higher education are over.

The crisis in financing will certainly last through this decade, and possibly through the rest of this century.

It isn't limited to Illinois—in state after state the demands for the funds of taxpayers cannot and will not be met within the foreseeable future.

Looking at the financial problems of higher education without considering other needs is a bit like a family deciding to buy a new car when money for food is already short.

There's really no magic nor any mystery about the state's finances.

For most major needs, there is only one source of funds, the general state tax we all pay.

Thus when one need becomes extreme, the other needs have to give.

For most of the big states like Illinois, well, costs, every need, however important it may be, must be measured against every other need.

To suggest that higher education has in any way

been neglected in Illinois is to ignore the plain facts.

In terms of spending per person in the state, Illinois ranks above all other populous industrial states, including California and New York.

In the decade beginning in 1960, our spending on state colleges and universities soared 340 per cent while enrollments increased at less than half that rate.

That scarcely supports the fiction that our higher education needs have been shared or neglected.

Yet we witnessed last year a most bitter and pointless battle, with rank partisan overtones, to increase spending for higher education without a single move to provide the additional funds that were demanded.

I am hopeful that the failure of last year will, this year, convince our educators that the hard task of holding the line on expenses must and should be theirs.

Any other course leaves to persons outside the educational community the job of determining what's most important in education—what should be fully funded, and what should be cut back.

To turn the job over to the General Assembly would establish a precedent that would haunt our educators for years to come.

Last year's battle was an attempt to force public and legislative emotions to guide decisions which the higher education community was reluctant to make itself.

This year we are starting as early as we can to convince the legislature that we are serious in our determination to make their own choices within available revenues, and that qualified students are not them to come out of the financial deprivation of the last decade and join the rest of us in the world of practical realities.

Dobrey Drainage to Be Aired at Meeting

The prospects of an early beginning on construction of drainage facilities in the Dobrey Slough area—a project planned and financed by the Illinois State Division of Waterways—will be aired at a meeting on drainage and flood problems scheduled next week in the Granite City offices of the East Side Levee and Sanitary District offices.

Other topics scheduled for discussion include means of regulating the level of Horseshoe Lake to accommodate greater drainage from the Quad-City interior area, future prospects of Hillside Drainage planning and control of stormwater runoff during heavy rains. The meeting will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 12.

According to Mrs. Helen Hawkins, representing residents in the Dobrey Slough area, one of the major questions to which an answer will be sought is the status of a $100,000 appropriation by the Illinois General Assembly for the proposed Dobrey Slough drainage canal. The drainage facility would extend eastward from Dobrey Slough, under the Alton & Southern right-of-way and drain into Horseshoe Lake.

Concern among residents of Angela Drive, Roney Drive and other sections of the area affected by Dobrey Slough. Recent heavy rains emphasized the need of immediate drainage facilities in the area to supersede Hillside drainage which still is far in the future.

Construction of the state-sponsored Dobrey Slough drainage canal was proposed early in 1971, but planning hit a snag when the levee district, charged with the responsibility of providing right-of-way for the project, was unable to obtain two major easements needed in the area east of Pontoon Road.

The levee district did not file condemnation proceedings for the easements until late summer. Those suits still are pending in circuit court and the state cannot begin work on the drainage facility until the right-of-way is secured.

Gillies to Attend
Mrs. Hawkins said invitations to attend the meeting have been sent to John Gillies, chief engineer of the Illinois Division of Waterways who said he will attend, representatives of the Illinois Department of Conservation, Nameoki township, Granite City, the Chamber of Commerce and Granite City Steel Co., and residents of the area.

A long-standing plan under which Granite City Steel Co. would furnish culverts for installation at the eastern end of Horseshoe Lake also will be discussed at the meeting. The culverts would be installed by the levee district near two other large culverts, thus expediting drainage of the lake into the Cahokia Drainage Canal which carries stormwater to the levee district's North Pumping station in East St. Louis and thence into the river.

State Representatives of the 38th Legislative District also have been invited to attend the meeting and Mrs. Hawkins said it is hoped Gov. Melvin Price also may attend the session.

Union Electric Gives 2.11% Rate Increase
The Illinois Commerce Commission granted a 2.11% rate increase to Union Electric Co. providing additional revenue of $394,000 a year, in action taken last week.

The utility had petitioned for a 12.2% hike which would have increased $4,560,000 which the company said was needed to meet high interest rates on loans and increased construction and labor costs.

November Payroll Cut At SIU Carbondale

The November payroll for Southern Illinois University at Carbondale was lighter by 318 employees than the one for the same month a year before.

Payroll Officer James D. Hamilton said the decrease in gross pay for the month amounted to $35,733.

Totals showed a reduction of 240 employees paid from general revenue appropriations and 78 whose salaries were paid through local sources such as Auxiliary Enterprises funds and restricted grant accounts. The biggest dollar decrease came in faculty ranks, where 41 fewer employees accounted for a $90,004 payroll reduction.

The Civil Service work force was down by 93, for a payroll cut of $39,881.

A total of 184 fewer students were reported on November rosters, but student wages paid out during the month were up $94,131 from a year ago. Main factor in the jump, according to Student Work and Financial Assistance Program Director Frank Adams, was a 15-cent-an-hour federal minimum wage hike that went into effect last February. It boosted the student work wage to $1.60 an hour to $1.68.

The November payroll for SIU at Carbondale totaled $4,609,150 covering 8,796 employees of all kinds.

Howell told police that the four men beat him and took approximately $250 from his wallet. The four were arrested at Klein and Busell Streets after the incident.

They were transferred to the county jail in lieu of bond. An East St. Louis man and two Venice men were held under $10,000 bond and bond for another Venice man was set at $5,000.

Howell was treated in the emergency room at St. Elizabeth Hospital and was released.

GOP Starting Year on Note of Optimism

By KEN WATSON
Complex News Service

Springfield — Illinois Republicans will be starting the year on a surprising note of optimism.

The GOP has spent most of 1971 deep in the depths of gloom and has been approaching the 1972 campaign with about as much confidence as Pittsburgh taking the field against Notre Dame.

But in recent days Republican smiles are once again to be found beneath the Statehouse Dome and it's not all because of the traditional Yuletide spirit.

The Republicans are beginning to feel better about the upcoming election year and the lion's share of the credit goes to that old foe, Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Some share a feeling that Daley has bungled his Democratic party into the biggest mess since he blew a governor's race in 1968.

Only in Chicago — the Daley-caused fix concerning Cook County, D. I. State's Attorney Edgar J. Hanrahan is of such a cynical scope and dimension that it could probably not have occurred in any American metropolitan city other than Chicago.

The upshot of the affair is that Democrats for the first time in at least 20 years are going to be embroiled in serious primary fights on both the statewide and Cook County levels.

Meanwhile Statehouse Republicans are rubbing their eyes in disbelief that their party appears to have come through the filing period with no serious primary fights and with a harmony and unity unequalled in years.

It remains to be seen how the Democratic primary battling will hurt them and aid the Republicans as far as the payoff of a fall election is concerned. But at least the ingredients are there.

Each day it becomes more apparent that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon will have no easy ride in turning back the gubernatorial nomination bid of Walter Dan Walker, Chicago attorney, who may be benefiting more than realized from all the Democratic squabbling.

If Simon doesn't win big in the primary the subsequent race against Republican Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will take on a new dimension. At the least, a close-Simon primary victory would cost him his momentum.

Picked Up Bonus

Republicans feel, too, that they have picked up a bonus in the Democratic slate-making, climaxed by the Hanrahan imbroglio, in the concentration of attention on the mayor.

Rarely has Daley's role as undisputed boss of the Illinois Democratic party been so fully illustrated. Never before has he appeared so frequently on Downstate television screens and the reaction to his honor has been less than flattering.

Although Chicagoans may be used to him, Daley came across many Downstate as a caricature of Spencer Tracy in the last hurrah.

With the exception of Chicago, the Big City machines have long faded into history all across the United States. Some students of American politics think the skill may be tolling for Daley's.

Voters of 'today' are more independent-minded than in the past and these in Illinois should decide to end the Daley era those Democratic candidates who have received the blessing could be in trouble too.

Accounting for Your Family's Money

If you wonder where your money goes; try keeping an account book this year. You may find that keeping records also leads to more meaningful spending of money.

Jeanne Hafstrom, University of Illinois Extension family economist, suggests that you start the new year right by using the Illinois Family Account Book. It is organized to handle a wide range of financial matters. Here are some special features:

—It contains space to enter daily family living expenditures for each month.

—Pages are arranged so that purchases may be entered on either a cash or credit basis. If you use 30-day charge accounts or revolving charge cards, you can readily determine how much you owe at any time.

—Urban families will find a place for entries on their gross income as well as their taxes, income and Social Security. Farm families, who keep separate farm record books, can use this space as a current record of transfers of income from the farm business.

—A life insurance coverage record is available for listing the type of policy, the face value of the policy and the monthly premium payments.

—One section provides for recording additions to and withdrawals from savings and investments. There is also a place for recording all borrowing and repaying transactions on mortgages and loans.

—Space is available to record nonfarm business expenses—membership dues in union and business organizations, purchases of protective clothing and tools required by the employer and taxes and repairs on income property.

Since the money output entered in a farm family's monthly record represents only a part of the financial situation, space is included in the account book for recording of the goods furnished by the farm for the family. This record includes the amount and approximate dollar value of vegetables, fruits, and dairy and meat products furnished by the farm.

You will find a method for combining farm business and household expenses into one single flow-of-funds statement. The book also provides an end-of-the-year balance for urban families. The account book also provides a form to be used by either farm or urban families to compare their start the new year at both the beginning and end of the year.

The Illinois Family Account Book costs 50 cents and is available from your county Extension adviser, Box 68, 900 Hillsboro Ave., Edwardsville, 62025, phone 656-4862.

Facts About Common Cold

Many popular beliefs, which are not supported by facts, surround the common cold.

BPW MEETS WEDNESDAY

The Granite City Business and Professional Women's Club will hold a business meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday Jan. 10, 707 Madison Ave. A meeting of the club's executive board will take place one hour earlier.

I understand the only way she could be forced to leave her home for a convalescent hos-relative, a widow of 74. She's a well-educated woman and has considerable money of her own. The problem is that for a good number of years she has become very peculiar to say the least.

She avoids all outside contacts, and lives in a miserable circumstances in her home. Her health has been bad and she has no love for doctors. The consequence is that everything is run down and filthy.

And she has several dogs, cats, rabbits and birds in the house which make a terrific mess all the time.

My relative could afford to hire help but she prefers to have a man on the place. He is supposed to do all the work. Heaven help him, he is very inadequate.

Several times she has been forced to go into the hospital for emergency treatment. And when she's ready to leave the hospital she insists on returning to her home and pets, instead of going to a nursing home where she'll get the care she needs.

I understand the only way she could be forced to leave her home for a convalescent hospital would be if someone would file a statement declaring that she's incompetent to care for herself. It has been suggested by other friends and relatives that I file such a petition.

However, I'm not going to do this because I have never been close to her and don't feel that it's any of my business how she lives. And furthermore she might be able to prove to the courts that she can take care of her own affairs.

Do you think I'm right or should I side with the others?

Net Amigas

Dear Norma:

I heartily agree with your wise decision.

And I strongly urge the other friends and relatives involved in this situation to be very sure of all their facts before taking such drastic actions.

Nevertheless, I do know there are some cases where this type of a suit is necessary. Even so I'm sure we all feel it's an extremely hard and painful step to have to institute.

Dear Nana:

After reading your interesting articles on would-be writers I hope you can help me.

My wife has been writing for several years and she recently sold a few of her magazine articles. I'm sure you know how proud I am of her.

For my wife's birthday I suggested she get a new electric typewriter as her old one is in pretty bad condition. And I thought she should pick out the one she wanted.

But my wife says they are too expensive and she's not sure she'll ever sell enough of her writing to warrant the cost.

I'm wondering if I should go ahead and get one for her. I doubt that her old one will last much longer the way she pounds it daily.

Worn Out

Dear Norma:

Although I don't think you should buy an electric typewriter for your wife at random, do feel she should consider your generous offer.

Shortly after I started my column, my husband gave me an electric typewriter for our 25th wedding anniversary. I know I was very grateful for his thoughtful gesture.

My old typewriter was like your wife's. And it cost me more in repairs than it was worth, not to mention that it was wearing me out typing on a manual typewriter.

Perhaps if you'll point out

Granite City PRESS-RECORD
Mon., Jan. 3, 1972 Page 13

these facts, your wife may be more receptive to your wonderful idea.

I hardly think many writers would reject such a generous offer as there's no comparison between the two machines.

Dear Nana:

I enjoy your column very much especially your interesting hobby projects.

I have one that I thought might be of interest to your readers. I make crocheted throw rugs from old bread wrappers or any kind of suitable plastic bags. However, it takes an enormous amount of wrappers for one rug, but you should have a lot with your rest home. I have a friend that gets the wrappers for me from a rest home in our neighborhood.

I sell my rugs for $3. They are easy to wash, require little care and don't slip on the floor.

I thought the guests in your rest home might like to make these rugs for their rooms or for their families for gifts.

Prudential Revises Auto Policy Rates

A rate revision by the new Prudential Property and Casualty Insurance Co. (PRUPAC), a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, will reduce premiums for about 40% of the company's Family Automobile policyholders in Illinois beginning today, David J. Sherwood, PRUPAC's president, has announced.

PRUPAC began selling automobile and homeowners insurance in Illinois last June through 1,600 licensed Prudential agents.

Sherwood says the new rates reduce premiums by as much as 29% in some cases. The greatest reductions apply to families with drivers under 25 in the household, as well as those located in the five rating territories that include the city-ies of Chicago and East St. Louis.

"Although all automobile rates are not being reduced at this time," he said, "our experience will be under continuing review during 1972 to determine the effects of Phase II controls on administrative expenses and claims, particularly automobile repair and medical costs, and the new law for compensation of automobile accident victims which takes effect in Illinois this month."

"These factors should have a favorable influence on automobile insurance rates, and we will take further action promptly if an improving trend is indicated," Sherwood said.

Jobless May Qualify for More Funds This Year

Jobless Illinois workers who have drawn all the regular unemployment benefits to which they were entitled may qualify for additional payments, beginning this month under a new extended benefits program, Barney J. Grabiec, Illinois Director of Labor, has announced.

Initially, some 38,000 persons who filed new claims and exhausted their regular benefits during 1971 may qualify for the new benefits if they are still out of work and meet the requirements of the law. Each month thereafter some 7,000 others are expected to exhaust their regular benefits.

Grabiec said the new program was established recently by a change in State law required by a 1970 Federal law. Payment of extended unemployment benefits has been triggered throughout the nation because the proportion of workers covered by all State laws who claimed benefits for weeks of unemployment exceeded the trigger point of 4.5% specified in the federal and state laws.

"The comparable insured unemployment figures for the state are below 4.5%, which remains far below the national figures. This reflects the fact that the overall unemployment rate, in Illinois is substantially lower than that for the nation as a whole," Grabiec pointed out.

Grabiec added that jobless workers who filed new claims

For regular benefits in 1971 and have since exhausted they may claim the new benefits at an unemployment compensation office where they had claimed their regular benefits on Saturday, Jan. 8. Those having moved to a new community should go to the office in that community.

All Animals, Man Can Be Affected by Rabies

(This is the third of four articles on rabies, a disease now on the increase in Illinois. The series has been prepared by the Division of Preventive Medicine, Illinois Department of Public Health.)

What animals are affected by rabies? How do you tell if an animal has the disease? What do you do if you suspect rabies?

Actually rabies isn't very particular about its victims. So far as is known, all the warm-blooded mammals can contract the disease. Although chickens, turkeys, and frogs have been experimentally infected, they are never found infected in nature.

Unfortunately, man can and does become infected with rabies.

Illinois Animals
In Illinois the disease has been seen in such animals as the dog, cat, fox, skunk, bat, cow, horse and more rarely in the sheep, goat, pig, raccoon, coyote, groundhog, muskrat, badger and squirrel. In the last few years other states have reported rabies in such animals as the mountain lion, bobcat, monkey, and mongoose.

Until an effective vaccine was discovered, Mexico lost 10,000 cattle and horses each year to rabid vampire bats. Now the herds are routinely vaccinated against rabies.

Rabies is one of the few diseases known which always ends in death. Once the disease develops to the point at which an animal shows symptoms, death is inevitable within a week.

Rabies is not always easily recognized, even by an experienced veterinarian. Early symptoms may be no more than restlessness, or the pupil of one eye being slightly larger than the other.

His One of Four
Luckily, not all humans who are exposed to the disease develop rabies. Figures show that only one of every four persons exposed actually contracts the disease even if no vaccine is administered. There are two main reasons for this difference: first, some people have better body defenses than others; second, the amount of saliva injected into the wound may vary, even though the bites are of the same severity.

However, the person who develops rabies, always dies.

In different animals, rabies acts in different ways. Let's take dogs first, since most human exposures are from the canine clan.

Many times a person takes the family dog into a veterinarian's office believing the pet has a bone in his throat. Usually a dog does, but some times the dog's throat and jaw muscles are paralyzed by rabies, so that he can't swallow the saliva which drips from his mouth. This dog has a form of the disease known as dumb rabies. Soon, the animal will go into a coma and die.

Furious Rabies
Furious rabies, a second form, often begins with a change in disposition. The dog becomes either unusually friendly or vicious. This is rapidly followed by drooping and a change in voice; then the animal begins to travel aimlessly, sometimes as far as 20 miles. He bites anything in front of him, alive or not. In a few days he develops paralysis and dies.

But the damage has been done. Other animals have been exposed, keeping the disease alive and continuing to spread it.

Cats are affected in much the same way as dogs. The main difference is that their actions become more extreme. With dumb rabies, they often crawl off and hide, to die quietly. When they develop the furious type, they are extremely friendly and bite themselves.

Cattle and other farm animals may become wild and attack anything in sight, or they may simply develop paralysis and die. Since most farm animals are not bitten by nature, they usually spread the disease only by accident.

Skunks, foxes, and other wild animals act much like dogs when affected with rabies. Merely seeing one around houses the daylight is enough to cause suspicion since early in the disease they lose their natural fear of man.

Rules Listed
Suppose you suspect that one of your animals has rabies. What should you do? These are the rules to follow:

Do not kill the animal; destroying the brain makes definite diagnosis impossible.

Lock the animal in a secure place; rabid animals are unbelievably strong but die within one week.

Do not turn the animal loose; doing so will endanger the lives of others and help spread the disease.

Have the animal examined by a licensed veterinarian; he will tell you whether there is any danger.

If you are bitten or get saliva on you, wash thoroughly and consult your physician at once.

Southern Illinois University-Southwestern highlights of 1971 included voter registration (top left) of those 18 and older, following passage of the 26th Amendment and (top right) the January student-faculty signing of a statement of support for Chancellor (now President) John S. He had been criticized for his actions as executor of the estate of the late Paul Powell; the support statement was presented to the SIU board, which gave Dr. Randleman a unanimous vote of confidence.

Illinois Watches Progress Of Revenue Sharing Bill

By RAY SERATI
Copy News Service

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois officials are going to watch the progress of a bill in Congress, sponsored by Cong. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., which provides a form of revenue sharing for the federal-state and local governments.

Mills has filed the revenue sharing plan in hopes to work out some arrangement on the program. President Nixon had made such a proposal to the Congress, but Mills, who heads the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, was not overwhelmingly in favor of it.

Mills spoke to a joint session of the Illinois General Assembly to outline his views. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew also spoke in favor of it.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has been one of the Nation's foremost supporters of revenue sharing. He started revenue sharing between the state and local governments. This was done with the passage of the state income tax plan.

Ogilvie aides say the Governor will be watching the progress of the Mills' proposal.

through Congress. They say he is hopeful that Congress will take action on the proposal early in 1972. One aide says the governor is planning to support the Mills proposal.

Report President's Support
Reports filtering back to Ogilvie's office indicates that President Nixon also will support the Mills plan.

This is taken by some to mean that there is a strong realization not only on the state level, but also on the federal level, that local government is in bad need of financial help.

Under the plan, some $100 million would be made available to the state and local governments each year for five years. The money would come from federal funds. This would be split at about $3.5 billion for the state governments and $3.5 billion for local governments.

Under the formula worked out in the plan, some $100 million would be made available for Illinois state government and some $170 million for local governments.

The Mills proposal would cover a five-year period. It would also be under constant Congressional review.

Supreme Court To Decide On County Election

An appeal filed last week to the 5th District Appellate Court regarding election dates of county board members was certified Thursday to the Illinois Supreme Court for a decision.

The appeal was filed by Madison County State's Atty. R. W. Griffith in behalf of Miss Eulalia Hotz, county clerk, after the Madison County Circuit Court ruled that the Feb. 8 (primary) and April 4 (general election) dates should be changed to conform with the regular primary and general election dates of March 21 and Nov. 7.

Various rulings of the courts in the state have caused confusion as to county board elections, calling for a final and binding decision by the Supreme Court.

Attorneys are to present briefs by Jan. 10 and a Supreme Court hearing is set for Jan. 13. Miss Hotz said today she hopes to have the issue resolved in a uniform manner for the benefit of all. Minority Leader Clyde Choate and State Representative Horace Calvo of Granite City met recently and expressed concern about the variety of decisions by the various Circuit Courts on the subject.

Miss Hotz said no decisions were made by the Circuit Courts affecting the filing dates for independent candidates. Under the present law, county board members are now filing as independent candidates with the deadline today.

However, in case of independent candidates under the general election law, first filing date would be July 31 through Aug. 7.

Publication dates, dates concerning absentee ballot applications and many other requirements must be set out in a final order for the direction of election officials throughout the state.

Aetna Offers Rate Cut Or Greater Benefits

Aetna Life & Casualty has announced it is offering its Illinois policyholders the choice of a rate reduction or a major increase in benefits, at no additional charge in most cases, over their 1971 premiums.

Aetna, insurer of more than 112,000 state drivers, said it was making available the consumer options because of a series of rate cuts the company has made in anticipation of savings under the limited no-fault law.

Driver Ticketed

This week Aetna cut premiums for both medical payments and uninsured motorists coverage by 50% or more and reduced rates for bodily injury liability protection an average of seven percent.
